PREFACE

Our Mennonite heritage and history is indeed a unique one. This was impressed upon me as I worked on this project of compiling a family genealogy for a class in Mennonite History, Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas.

Although I had hardly enough time to complete a family tree in fulness and correctness, I have attempted to construct an accurate account of the Heinrich Janzen family. I received most of my information from my grandmother (Mrs. John B. Harder), my mother (Mrs. P. A. Teichroew), and some from one of Heinrich Janzen's remaining children (Mrs. A. J. Klassen), and also by letter from various individuals of the family. I am grateful for the help that has been given me in this project.

It was interesting to talk to the older generation members of the family because of the unique and unusual stories and information they had to present. If I could have recorded my conversations with these individuals I would have been able to catch and show the real spirit of the older generation Mennonites.

For some the real purpose of this family tree was to trace the movement of one of the ordinary Mennonite families from South Russia to the New World; then to see how it increased in numbers, how its church interests changed; and to note to what areas its descendants have spread and what vocations the family members have pursued.

I would have been able to construct a more historically interesting genealogy if I could have obtained more information regarding the early members. Since only a few incomplete records have been left this is impossible.

This record was compiled in 1956. Births, marriages, and deaths since 1956 must be added by the reader in the provided blanks or in the extra pages.

This book is divided into five major sections. The first part consists of introductory information, notes, and pictures. The second part deals with the Franz Janzen family (143); the third part with Katherine Janzen (Dietrich Rempel) family (144); the fourth part with Helen Janzen (William Bestvater) family (148); the fifth part with Anna Janzen (J. D. Hiebert) family (14(10)).

The numbering system used throughout this family tree is of special significance. The tree begins with Franz Janzen (born 1798) and he is therefore number 1. His fourth son Heinrich is the next member of special concern. His number is 14. (Throughout this account every member's number will begin with 14.) Heinrich's third child is Franz Janzen, and his number is 143-- Franz is the third son of the fourth son of the first member of the family tree. A person with the number 1431111, for example, is the first child of the first child of the first child of the first child of the third child of the fourth child of the first Franz Janzen. 1431111 is the great great great-grandchild of Franz Janzen (1). Furthermore, 1431111 is a seventh generation member of the family.

A SHORT GLIMPSE OF THE

HEINRICH JANZEN FAMILY

Little is known about the very first member of my account of the Janzens. Franz Janzen was born in Prussia November 21, 1798, and died May 17, 1881. He married Anna Peters January 9, 1823. Nothing is known about nine of their children, except for Heinrich, the fourth child, who is my great great-grandfather.

Franz Janzen migrated to Kronsweide, South Russia, early in the 19th century and here all their children were born. Records indicate that Franz had fifty-one grandchildren and twenty great-grandchildren from his ten sons and daughters. (At what time this account was taken is unknown.)

Heinrich Janzen, the fourth child was born April 19, 1830. He married Anna Gerz (born March 9, 1833) on November 13, 1851. To them ten children were born. Nine of these were born in Schoenwiese, South Russia, and the last, Anna Janzen, was born in Mountain Lake, Minnesota. (Anna Janzen is now Mrs. A. J. Klassen.)

Being a miller in Schoenwiese, Heinrich became financially well-to-do. He ran several large flour mills near the Dneiper River and was also a fine builder. Naturally, his economical and industrial interests aided the family when it came to America.

In 1875 Heinrich and his wife left their home in recognition that their Mennonite faith and life were no longer safe in Russia. So with their six remaining children they began a long exhausting journey across Europe to America. They were struck with tragedy when they arrived in Londonderry, Ireland. The epidemic of measles which was hitting in Ireland laid hold of Heinrich's youngest son, Peter. Little Peter caused the family a months delay; he died June 16, 1876. Records show that he was buried in a Lutheran cemetery in Londonderry, Ireland, gravestone number 561.

Soon after the Janzen family arrival, July, 1876, in Mountain Lake, Minnesota, Heinrich built a house and barn and began his new American career of farming. The buildings which he built are still in existence. Today the farm is known as the "Schroeder Farm."

It was in this house that the First Mennonite Church of Mountain Lake began their organized services. Later Heinrich Janzen donated land upon which the present First Mennonite Church stands. Heinrich was also one of the church's first deacons.

Heinrich Janzen died May 2, 1892, at sixty-two years of age. His wife died April 29, 1920.

Only five of Heinrichs' children came to America. The other four died in their youth. Of those to come to America, Frank (my great-grandfather) was the oldest. Frank was born December 12, 1856, in Schoenwiese. From his marriage to Justina Epp were born seven children - Mary (my grandmother), Anna, Henry, Peter, Elizabeth, Justine, and Frank.

The oldest daughter, Katherine Janzen, was born December 26, 1858, and died November 14, 1935. From her marriage to Dietrich Rempel, born January 7, 1854, in Crimea, Russia, were born Anna, Katherine, Mary, Henry, Dietrich, Helen, George, ~~Helen~~, George and Frank.

Mary Janzen married Cornelius Penner April 15, 1909. Henry, the youngest son of Heinrich to come to America, never married. He taught in a rural school east of Mountain Lake.

The only real native American in the family is Anna. She was born about a year after the Heinrich Janzen family arrived in Mountain Lake, June 14, 1877. Her first marriage united her with J. D. Hiebert, August 25, 1900, and to this marriage were born five children--Ruth, Sarah, Clara, Agatha, and Helen. Anna's husband passed away October 1, 1913, after several years she married A. J. Klassen of Newton, Kansas.

NOTES TAKEN FROM EARLY RECORDS

OF THE FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

MOUNTAIN LAKE, MINNESOTA

(14) Heinrich Janzen was baptized into the Mennonite Church in 1849, in Kronsweide, South Russia, by Jacob Hildebrand. Heinrich was married to Anna Gerz, in Kronsweide on Nov. 13, 1851, by Cornelius Unruh. His wife was also baptized in Kronsweide, South Russia, in 1851.

Heinrich was a deacon of the First Mennonite Church in Mountain Lake, Minnesota.

Heinrich Janzen's Children:

(143) Franz Janzen was baptized in Schoenwiese, South Russia, in 1874, by Peter Klassen. Justina Epp, his wife, was baptized in 1881, in Mountain Lake, Minnesota, by Gerhard Neufeld.

(144) Katherina Janzen was baptized by Aron Wall, in 1877, into the First Mennonite Church. Dietrich Rempel, her husband, was baptized in 1872, by Jacob Wiebe, South Russia.

(145) Heinrich Janzen was baptized in 1880 by Gerhard Neufeld.

(147) Mary Janzen was baptized on June 2, 1884, also by Gerhard Neufeld. Her husband, Cornelius Penner, was baptized in 1885 by Jacob Braun, in South Russia.

(148) Helena Janzen was baptized on June 10, 1890, by Gerhard Neufeld.

(14/10) On May 22, 1899, Anna Janzen was baptized by Gerhard Neufeld.

A TRANSCRIPT OF AN EARLY JANZEN RECORD

Blume Gottes warum brach,
Dich so früh des Gärtners Hand,
Er brach dich nicht, er pflanzte dich,
Nur in ein bessers Land.

Ruhe sanft in dieser Gruft,
Bis dich Jesus wieder ruft.

Grabstein Sprüche

Vater's Spruch
Halte was du hast, das Niemand deine Krone nehme.

Mutter's Spruch

Wer aber beharret bis ans Ende, der wird selig.

Familienspruch

Wer gläubig geschieden
Der ruhet in Frieden
Gestillet ist sein Sehnen
Getroknet die Tränen.
